7. SUMMARY OF THE SEMINAR

7.1 MA Thesis Presentation

- For the first session of the camp, MA students who successfully submitted their thesis by June 30, 2017 gave a thesis presentation prior to the final oral examination (July 29, 2017). Two commentators for each presentation reviewed the paper prior to the summer camp and prepared for the questions and comments. Furthermore, active open discussion with the seminar members allowed presenters to clarify unclear parts of their presentations.

(1) Li Chuping

“Analyzing the Action for Climate Change Education in Wuhan City, China”

(2) Zhang Yan

『加工食品のフードサプライチェーンにおける食品ロス発生メカニズムの解明』

7.2 PhD Research Topic Presentation

- During the second and the third session of the camp, total of six PhD students presented about their research topic. Each presenter gave a brief introduction about their research topics and MA students raised questions about the topic as well as methodology. These two sessions provided MA students with the better understanding of academic research and methodology.

(1) Lee Kwangho

『発展途上国の廃棄物管理とトランジションにおける行政の役割に関する研究』

(2) Qin Ziyi

“The Determinants of Social Capital Formation: An Empirical Study of Japan”

(3) Hu Jia

“Study on the Determinants and Effects the Distribution of Community Development NPOs in Japan”

(4) Choi Yunhee

“Social Acceptance for Siting the Final Repository of Spent Nuclear Fuel (SNF) in Finland”

(5) Firman Tatariyanto

“Taxing Haze Pollution: Considering Underground Economy and Taxpayer Compliance Behavior: A case of Indonesia”

(6) Yamada Mika

“Waste Disposal Behavior in Abidjan”

8. CONCLUSISON

- Matsuoka Summer Camp 2017 allowed the seminar members the opportunity not only to discuss their ideas and research direction but also to get to know each other in a friendly and relaxed atmosphere.

The camp enabled MA students to review their thesis thoroughly prior to their final examination of Master's thesis. It also allowed all MA program students to deepen their understanding in academic research by listening to the PhD research topic presentations.

Most importantly, the summer camp became a platform between PhD and MA students to interact with each other and to share their ideas. Professor Matsuoka also emphasized the importance of active participation of the seminar members to constantly improve the quality of the seminar.

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude to Professor Matsuoka for his endless support to the students. Also, I would like to extend my appreciation to all the seminar members for their active participation in the summer camp. Last but not least, special thanks to Batbayar Nomin and Yao Ziwen, MA managers, for their dedication to the summer camp.
